No. 1 global warming villain

Esso, the largest corporation on the planet, has spent the last decade working hard to sabotage international action on global warming.

More than any other oil company, Esso (ExxonMobil in the USA) has spent millions of dollars to ensure that the US President, George W Bush, walked away from the only international treaty on global warming, the Kyoto Protocol.

UN scientists say that if the global warming caused by burning oil, coal and gas goes unchecked, there will be a massive increase in storms, floods, drought and disease. But Esso still denies that burning these fuels causes global warming. Esso plans to spend $7.9 billion this year looking for new oil reserves and not one dollar on clean, renewable energy.

Esso thinks it's too big for the rest of us to stop it wrecking the planet. It's wrong.

Esso is the world's No. 1 Global Warming Villain. If we are going to stop global warming, we have to stop Esso.
